ebay shopping

No longer a revolution but now part of the mainstream shopping experience, buying online is how a large percentage of us now source gifts, household goods and furniture.

Last Christmas the huge number of online buyers affected the high street shops to such an extent that they started their new year sales early to make up for the shortfall in turnover.

Experts say that most of us search the internet for prices or information and then visit the high street store to view the purchase in person.

For some items this doesn't work as they tend to be a one off and are held somewhere the other side of the country.

Another problem is accountability as buying over the internet can sometimes leave the customer with a bad experience and no comeback.

Ebay offers a solution for both buyers and sellers which gives both some form of protection for both and accountability for companies who prove products over the internet.

We now offers a range of used, refurbished and new built units utilising ebay as an additional sales outlet.

eco cabins

Cheshire Container & Cabin now offers a range of environmentally improved site cabins commonly known as eco-cabins.

The units are steel full steel construction giving anti-vandal protection but are lined and insulated to a much higher specification.

With low U values plus added fire protection the range has double glazing, timed heating, PIR lights and a range of power saving fixtures and fittings as standard.

Most supplier save on costs by reducing the build quality but we have managed to use clever design methods to keep costs down without compromising on quality and length of life value. We are looking forward to the future as a major provider of temporary site accommodation units to the construction industry.

We all need more space...
