Scandinavian Pine

Also referred to as 'Redwood' to differentiate it from 'Whitewood' such as Spruce, it is imported from Sweden, Finland and Russia. The grades vary for different uses. Knots are common but their size and quality vary according to the part of the tree from which boards are converted. It should be noted that the timber is kiln dried prior to shipping but the moisture content is often about 18% and therefore higher than most kiln dried hardwood moisture contents.
