There's a New Shade of Green in Residential Building

SEALECTION Agribalance[®] spray foam insulation sets new standards of quality, energy efficiency and performance for homeowners, builders, contractors and architects. Our semi-rigid, open cell polyurethane insulation's high R-value and ease of application have taken insulation performance to a whole new level. SEALECTION Agribalance provides three benefits: sealing out dust and pollen, reducing extraneous noise, and increasing energy efficiency that can lower your utility bill.

Made with renewable natural resources, SEALECTION Agribalance creates energy efficient homes by expanding to seal cracks, gaps and voids in attics, walls and ceilings. As a result, home builders and homeowners can use smaller, more energy efficient HVAC units to achieve the same level of comfort.

SEALECTION Agribalance creates a healthier, cleaner and quieter environment by reducing moisture intrusion and protecting your home from contaminants like dust, dirt and allergens. Plus, it tightly bonds with surfaces in the attic, ceiling and walls to minimize airborne noise.

By using renewable materials and reducing energy consumption, SEALECTION Agribalance can reduce a building's impact on the environment, and supports green building to create healthier living spaces.
