

Secure Anti-Ligature Steel Radiator Covers

Our unique secure radiator cover incorporating the NEW TRULY ANTI-LIGATURE punched mesh design.

Coverad offer a unique product unlike any other radiator cover on the market. We manufacture a cover which does not have any mesh welded into it, meaning there are no weak spots or any potential for patients to detach or remove the slot from the mesh to create the ligature point that is to be avoided.

Ligature points in Hospitals have been highlighted as a major concern. Coverad's secure range of Anti-Ligature Covers means you need not worry any more.

Having supplied standard steel covers for an excess of 20 years, Coverad is always in the forefront of design and works with its customers to ensure every need is met.

- High Quality, Heavy Gauge 2mm Steel
- Resistant to impact and aggressive behaviour
- Anti-Ligature Mesh PUNCHED into cover
- NO welded mesh to detach from cover
- Available in flat or varying degrees of sloping tops (45 degrees as standard)
- Class 0 Fire Rated
- Possible to manufacture in Stainless Steel
- Powder coated to RAL9010 (non-standard options available at additional cost)
- Radius on front edge for safety - no sharp edges
- One piece construction manufactured to ensure it is correct for the radiator inside (not the nearest standard size)

Fixings

90% of all fixings on our covers are internal. External fixings are kept to a minimum to ensure that the cover is secured appropriately for the environment. External fixings can be either standard or security fitting.

The company's free survey service ensures the covers supplied will fit both new and existing radiator installation.

Please note: Although our mesh design increases airflow over previous welded mesh style covers it does still reduce the output and therefore, although the surface temperature is considerably decreased, we cannot guarantee it will be below 43 degrees C
